TWO CENTS

WILLIAM WOOD TAKES MARY TO HIS OWN HOME

Man Who Would Be Father of Unborn, Thwarts Judge.

Carries Adams Girl Away to Holton and Weds Her.

FAMILIES ARE CONTENTED NOW

No More Efforts to Make Boy Marry Unfortunate.

Assault Case Against Read and Adams Is Ended.

William Wood made good. When he offered to square everything up between the Adams and Read families by wedding 16-year-old Mary Adams, thereby giving a name to her unborn child, Hugh MacFarland, judge of the probate court, said no. He refused to issue a license. But a little thing like that did not deter Wood. He simply took Mary and went to Holton where the probate judge of Jackson county joined them in the holy bonds of matrimony October 27.

Wood is a son of the modern Darnon but the identity of his Pythias has not been disclosed. Mary Adams tried to make a "Pythias" of young Eugene Read but he was not interested. Even when his father, Repps Read, and Mary Adams's father went to the trouble of buying a marriage license for him and Mary he held back. As they continued to be urged, using a revolver as the principal urge, he arose to the full height of his 5'10" and told his father and father Adams where to get off.

Mary Adams said Eugene Read was responsible for her condition. Eugene said Mary was anything but a truthful girl. Repps Read said Eugene was responsible. Eugene told the county attorney that his father was responsible for Mary's condition and was trying to "lay it onto him."

He swore to a complaint charging his father and William Adams, father of the girl, with assaulting him.

Cuffs and Kicks.

Eugene declared Read and Adams hunted him up one dark night about two weeks ago and with cuffs and kicks and a revolver they drove and led him over to Oakland before J. P. Williams, justice of the peace. He declared they had Mary Adams and a marriage license and that they threatened him with various things if he failed to stand up with Mary and permit Justice Williams to perform the ceremony. The boy balked and when Justice Williams learned of the circumstances he refused to give his services.

That ended proceedings that night but the next day Eugene appeared at an aunt and uncle and reported at the court house. He presented his case to the county attorney and an investigation disclosed that the marriage license had been issued by the probate judge.

Wood Dropped In.

Then the mysterious Wood put in his appearance. No one appears to know from whence he came. He just dropped casually into the probate judge's office and offered to be the goat.

"If it will straighten this matter out," he said to Judge MacFarland, "I'll marry this Adams girl. I haven't any particular interest in the case but there is no sense in all this trouble." Judge MacFarland tried to find out more about him but learned only that he had worked during the summer in Osage county and later up around Wameo or St. Mary.

"Are you responsible for this girl's condition?" asked the judge.

"Not on your life," replied Wood.

"Seven months ago I was working in Osage county. I was there before and after that."

"Well, what's the answer?" said the judge.

He didn't get the answer and Wood didn't get the license. Judge MacFarland figured that if Wood married the girl that would end the case and the guilty person would not be punished.

Already Married.

Wood went away. The assault case against Repps Read and William Adams was set for hearing today in the court of Topeka. Robert Garver was over in North Topeka looking up witnesses and Mary Adams.

"Say, Mary," said Garver, "I wish you would tell me why that man Wood wanted to marry you."

"Why, we were married," she replied.

"What," said Garver, "she replied. The judge refused the license."

Without answering, Mary went into the house and brought out a highly embellished wedding certificate, which told its own story. It showed that William Wood and Mary Adams were married by the probate judge of Jackson county October 27, at Holton, Kan.

"I guess that settles it," said Garver. "Wood was married once before and is probably 25 years of age."

VILLA IN PARRAL?

Refugees Report Bandits Have Captured Town.

Anxiety Felt for Americans Known To Be There.

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 2.—Much anxiety is felt here today for the safety of nine Americans at Parral. Further reports of the capture of that important Mexican town by Villista bandits on October 31 were brought here from Chihuahua City today, when the first train to arrive since Villistas cut the railway line north of the Chihuahua capital reached Juarez.

Several Mexican refugees said the report was current in the capital that Villa had taken Parral. Confirmation, however, has not been obtained from any source and in official quarters doubt is expressed as there was a heavy day night garrison there.

Constant skirmishing was in progress last night between Villistas and de facto government troops near La Guana, as the train passed there. Refugees stated they heard shots and heavy firing. All who came on the train were panic stricken and said that the City of Chihuahua was in panic when residents from their men bands were cutting off communication with the north.

Several of the Americans in Parral are employees of the A. Y. and Mining and Milling company, with offices here. Today the El Paso republicans in the city stated they had no communication from their men for many days and had no confirmation of the capture of the town.

New York, Nov. 3.—The will of Mrs. Marie Zinsner, filed here for probate, leaves $10,000 to each of three granddaughters on condition that each can cook an acceptable meal before her twenty-first birthday.

If any of the girls fails in the domestic test her share reverts to the residuary estate which is left to three sons.

District Attorney Clyne was to be asked today to look into the egg question. He is said to have boosted the price of the bureau of investigation department of justice, was to hear further complaints of co-operative grocers and the National Wholesale Grocers' association is violating the Sherman anti-trust law. Market conditions, as a phase of the high cost of living problem, are to be investigated by the delegates to the national conference on marketing and farm credits to be held here December 4, according to officers of the conference.

CITY WILL AD UNIONS IN FIGHT ON GAS RATES

Mayor House Offers Services of City Attorney.

Every Effort to Prevent 50-Cent Schedule Collection.

INDUSTRIAL COUNCIL BUSY

Final Plans With Executive Committee Tonight.

Utilities Commission's Old 25-Cent Rate Is Demanded.

The Topeka Industrial council will ask the city commission to loan them an attorney to assist in obtaining an injunction against the local gas company. Such was a statement made today by Frank B. Brown, president of the council.

The council has employed John E. Addington, an attorney, to represent it before the Shawnee county district court. Mr. Addington will meet with the executive committee of the council at 7 o'clock tonight and if he reports that he has gained sufficient facts to go before the court immediately, if it is ordered, the application for an injunction will be filed tomorrow.

If People Demand It.

"My understanding is that the city is willing to enter into the fight if representatives of the people will express a desire to go before the courts," said Brown. "The Topeka Industrial Council is certainly representing the people and the application for an injunction against the 50-cent gas rate in effect at the seven homes of the members of the executive committee, is merely a means of obtaining a blanket injunction against the collection of the rate thru this city."

The present plan of the Industrial Council is to apply for an injunction on the grounds that the public utilities commission has power, given it by state statutes, to establish rates, and that the public utilities commission has established a 25-cent gas rate.

Until Mr. Addington reports tonight the exact time for a mass meeting can not be decided upon. At that meeting the council hopes to stir up enthusiasm for its attempt to pull down the rate and by the temper of the people shown impress on the city commissioners the demand of the people for one of their representatives in the person of the city attorney or an assistant, to aid in the fight for an injunction against the 50-cent gas rate.

"The city attorney is at their disposal," said Mayor House.

Tom Doran, attorney for the local gas company, laughed today at the threatened injunction against the rate. A whole lot of agitation will result in naught, the attorney declared.
